[This section is blank]

Deism, (theology) - the doctrine that God exists but does not interfere with the world. It is a form of naturalism. The word is derived from the Greek word deus, meaning 'god'. It is often contrasted with theism, which holds that God is actively involved in the world. Deism was popular in the 17th and 18th centuries, particularly among the Enlightenment philosophers. It was based on the idea that God created the world and set it in motion, but then withdrew and allowed it to run on its own. Deists believed that reason and science were the only ways to understand the world, and that religious revelation was not necessary. They often rejected the idea of miracles and the authority of the Bible. Deism was a form of religious skepticism that sought to reconcile the ideas of God with the principles of reason and science.

Primaleón ... [1534] (Card 3)

"If we except Torquato Tasso ... Primaleon, the second book of Palmerin de Oliva, is by common consent to be numbered among the army of continuations which fail to sustain such merit as their originals may possess. Cervantes ignores it in the 'famous and diverting scrutiny,' that is, unless he tacitly includes both books under the title Palmerin de Oliva. Yet Primaleon was as popular in Spain during the sixteenth century as was Palmerin de Oliva. There were some ten editions in the original language between 1512 and 1588. As with Palmerin, a single copy of the first edition is recorded [Catalogue des livres rares et précieux, manuscrits et imprimés, composant la bibliothèque de M. Chedreau, Paris, 1865, no. 990]—H. Demonstration, A, of true love unto you the rulers of the Colony of the Massachusets in Nevv-England.

Coddington, William. 1601-1678.

*H.85.120

A demonstration of true love unto you the rulers of the Colony of the Massachusets in Nevv-England; shewing to you that are now in authority the unjust paths that your predecessors walked in, and of the Lord's dealings with them in his severe judgments, for persecuting his saints and children. Which may be a warning unto you, that you walk not in the same steps, lest you come under the same condemnation. Written by one who was once in authority with them; but always testified against their persecuting spirit... [London.] Printed in the Year 1674. 20 pp. Sm. 4°.

Relates to the persecution of Quakers by the Puritans of Massachusetts.

Pp. 9, 10 are supplied in facsimile from a copy in the Library of the Society of Friends.
